OAKMONT HIGH SCHOOL

Foreword

If this volume of the Periscope gladdens the hearts of the present Oakmont High School students, if it will recall happy memories in the future, and if it inspires loyalty to dear old Oakmont High, the staff will be duly rewarded for the hard work it has rendered to make this Periscope a success.

DEDICATION

We, The Periscope Staff of 1926, respectfully dedicate this volume of the Oakmont High School annual to who has for several years conducted the manual training department. In spite of his retiring nature, we have discovered in him a personality and steady influence which have contributed toward the welfare of the school. It is with a sense of deep appreciation that we publish this volume of The Periscope as a monument of just recognition of faithful service.

George D. Porter

Class Will

WE, the class of 1926, Oakmont High School, City of Oakmont, State of Pennsylvania, County of Allegheny, do bequeath to our heirs and successors of said Oakmont High School the following:

1. To the Juniors: Our Senior report rooms, report teachers, desks, seats in chapel, books, and best wishes for the Washington trip.
2. To the Sophomores we leave our executive ability and chewing gum under the seats in Miss Ray's room.
3. To the Freshmen we bequeath the ability to grow up, and the old razor blades under the dictionary in Miss Ray's room not to be used until bristles appear.
4. To our beloved teachers, we bequeath the privilege of giving U's in conduct, marks as low as they care to make them, without dissent on the part of our under classmen.
5. To our honorable principal we bequeath five dollars ($5) which shall be used for the sole and express purpose of purchasing permit blanks.
6. To the janitors we hereby bequeath that which we have never left them in four years—a clean room.
7. To the underclassmen as a whole we bequeath an underground passage, to be used for the sole and express purpose of going to Curti's during study periods.
8. To the speakers who have visited our schools we return with heartfelt appreciation the speeches given us in our four years of silent suffering.

To which we set our hand and the seal of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania this twenty-first day of February, nineteen hundred and twenty-six.

Joe Reed

It seems all lumber is sold by "Reeds,"
Maybe Joe Will fool us—
And start selling chicken feeds.

Mixed Chorus (1, 2, 3); Glee Club (4); Football (2); Class Basketball (1, 3, 4); Baseball (2, 3 ,4); Class Track (1); Athletic Committee (3, 4); Radio (4); Class President (4).

*Alice Sedgwick

When school work is all finished,
And things are said and done,
You bet she'll tell her family
Just how things should be run.

Mixed Chorus (1, 2); Class Basketball (4); French (3, 4); Latin (4); Dramatic (4); Debating (3); "Welcome Home, Jimmy" (3); Periscope (3); Oak Leaf (4); "Out of the Stillness" (4); Class Secretary (3, 4).

Ann McKee

I love its giddy gurgle,
I love its fluent flow,
I love to wind my mouth up,
I love to hear it go.

Mixed Chorus (1); Class Basketball (3); Class Track (2, 3); Euclidean (2, 3, 4); French (2, 3, 4); Latin (4); Dramatic (4); Debating (3); "Welcome Home, Jimmy" (3); Periscope (3); Class Treasurer (4).

*Vern Akers

Although her name suggests a thing
Which indeed is quite an alarmer,
We hope she never plows the field
And so grow to be a farmer.

MEANOR DAVIDSON

Quiet in his manner,
Earnest in his play;
True as steel is "Meanor,"
That's his regular way.

Class Track (3); French (4); Debating (3).

KARL A. ELERS

I am a funny little man,
As quiet as a mouse,
Who does the mischief that is done
In everybody's house.

*Hazel Harper

Her given name is Hazel,
But a mistake was surely made;
They should have called her "Mary,"
For her smile will never fade.

Orchestra (1, 2); Mixed Chorus (1, 2, 3, 4); Glee Club (1, 2, 3, 4); Basketball (1, 2, 3, 4); Volleyball (1, 2, 3, 4); Class Track (1, 2, 3, 4); French (3, 4); Athletic Committee (4).

Isabelle Hess

True as the dial to the sun,
Although it be not shined upon.

Mixed Chorus (1, 2); Class Basketball (4); Class Track (2).

*Honor.
High Honor.

SARA HUNTER

We have a girl
Who's on time like a clock;
If you're anxious to see her,
Just "holler" for "Doc."

Mixed Chorus (1, 2, 3); French (4); Dramatic (4); Latin (4).

GRACE HARRIS

A maiden shy am I, you see,
My middle name is modesty.

Tarentum High School (1); Mixed Chorus (2, 3, 4); Latin (4).

*MILES HOGG

But though that place I never gain
Herein lies comfort for my pain:
I will be worthy of it.

*Honor.
High Honor.

MERYL MCGUIRE

He believes in being "collegiate"
And having trousers baggy.
Who's the he, and what about him?
Why, it's our old friend "Maggy."

Orchestra (2, 3, 4); Mixed Chorus (2, 3, 4); Glee Club (2, 3, 4); Football (3, 4); Dramatic (4).

THOMAS MALLISSEE

Dignity does not consist in possessing honors, but deserving them.

Wilkinsburg High School (1); Kiski High School (2).

IDA MAHLA

Ida's very quiet,
She seldom says a word;
She must have heard the adage,
Let's be seen, not heard."

Mandolin (4); Class Basketball (3, 4); Class Track (4); French (4); Dramatic (4).

LLOYD MCLAUGHLIN

You don't have to know him to know him; for his smiling countenance betrays all his striking personalities.

One Stormy Night

It was a cold, winter night in Alaska in 1950. A keen, biting wind was blowing fiercely, and the temperature was already down to thirty degrees below zero. On the table beside me lay a bundle of newspapers that had just come on the last boat that would arrive before spring. I was anticipating the opening of them with a great deal of satisfaction, for they were one of my pleasures. To be sure I had my radio, but then it was better to have something to read, and it was my custom to start at the front page and read every word, not omitting a single item.

Outside the wind howled louder and the windows shook, but inside it was warm and cozy in the flickering light of the fire. I seemed hungry for news of the outside world, of my old friends and long-forgotten acquaintances. With a forced calmness, I slowly opened the bundle of newspapers. As I eagerly turned the pages, a certain notice caught my eye. It was an announcement of the weekly radio program of Station 8AGQ, at Oakmont High School and the entertainment for the whole week was to be presented by the members of the class of 1926. It ran as follows:

6:30—Teaberry Time, Vera Evans.
7:30—Address, "Oakmont as a Community Center," by President of Oakmont Chamber of Commerce, Roy Bossert.
8:30—Program under auspices of Verona Steel Castings, with Hazel Harper at the piano, and a mixed quartet: Isabel Hess, Virginia Green, Carl Elers, Edgar Thompson.
9:30—Address, "The Care of the Hair," Berenice Greer, agent for Hair Groom.

SUNDAY

10:45 A. M.—Services from Sixth Presbyterian Church, Pittsburgh, Rev. Lewis, pastor.
11:30—Tabernacle service, Rabbi John Jose. Music by Temple Duet: Margaret Palmer, Margretta Stotler.
1:00 P. M.—Religious talk, "My Adventures in the South Sea Islands," Sara Dixon.
3:00—Bible Class, conducted by Donald McCandless.
5:00—Address, "The Evils of Chewing Gum," Margaret Snee, President of the W. C. T. U.
8:00—Atwater Kent Radio Hour, Thomas Mallisee, violinist; Laura Munro, pianist.
11:00—Musical Revue, Vern Akers, of George Bite's Scandals.

I turned to the radio and adjusted it to the proper wave length. I ought to be just in time to get the address by the President of the Chamber of Commerce, but I heard nothing except the wind, howling outside. Then I looked down at the paper —it was three weeks old.

EDITORIAL

We are now at the close of our Junior year, and we have but one more year of high school life before us. A few look forward with eagerness to our Senior year, but more do so with reluctance, for it marks the end of a race, which, although hard, has been an enjoyable one.

As Freshmen we made our debut into high school life with an eager rush that amazed everyone.

By the Sophomore year, however, we had become settled and had taken the role of our position with a perfection paralleled only by the venerable class of '26.

The year just ended has probably been our busiest and best. As Juniors we have put over a "Prom" and "The Periscope," surpassing all that have gone before. We have contributed our share, if not more, to both athletic and academic work.

Through it all, we have been harassed by our most keen rivals, the class of '26; and now as they depart to that great mass of Alumni, let us bid them God-speed and good luck in all they may undertake.

Next year, as illustrious Seniors, let us attempt to uphold the standards that our predecessors have so faithfully borne. "We can and we will" make it our best year and leave our mark in the history of Oakmont High.

The Class of '27

What class surpasses all by far,
With which none other is a par,
What class is surely best of all,
Class of '27 has the call.

What class leads others far, in sport,
And wins in games of any sort,
And win or lose with equal grace,
Class '27 takes leading place.

What ones in studies are the best,
Who work at all with equal zest,
What can one do but just admit
Class '27 first place will fit.

Then let us all give honor due
Salute the '27 crew;
Give honor to the greatest class,
From fondest mem'ry 'twill never pass.

THE CLASS OF 1928

A Fowl Conspiracy

THE hot July sun looked down tranquilly on the small southern town. Especially he regarded a field on the outskirts, where a group of small boys of indiscriminate color were, or had been enjoying a game of baseball. On the edge of the plot were the low dirty cabins and truck and flower gardens of Alonzo, the most hated negro in three countries, that is, hated by small boys.

Ever and anon, it was natural for a good ball to sail unluckily into Alonzo's domain. It would never be seen again, for within the hovel reposed a chest which contained, according to the boys, "mos' a hundred of ouah balls." Plot after plot had been vainly tried in futile efforts to regain the balls, but small-boy rumors regarding the negro's butcher knife and his large teeth always deterred the conspirators when the hour of action was come. Matters had stood thus for two years.

One day a lank stranger, new owner of a well kept plantation near town, was standing on the side lines of the boys' ball field when a ball was hit into Alonzo's garden, in which he took such great pride. Alonzo didn't mind the balls a great deal, but he objected strenuously to the results of an influx of small boys after it. He drew these conclusions from bitter experience, and therefore had not allowed the boys to enter.

"Does that happen very often, boys?" demanded the stranger, as he watched Alonzo spitting wholesale curses, retrieve the offending ball. He was told the story and the present state of affairs with great bitterness.

"Say, looky here," he proposed, "You know the lot back of the house on the plantation?" They did, and had been forbidden to use it by the former acid tongued owner.

"Well, I own that now, and I like to enjoy a little fun now and then. If you can show me that box of balls by ten o'clock tonight, you can use that field. Now use your heads and beat the old fellow at his own game." He turned and left.

You may believe that after his leaving the boys put their heads together and thought. At length Micky Snyder, gang leader, jumped up. "Say, listen, I've gotta peach of an idea. Get some sacks and fill them with"—he deftly shouted, and scattered to do his commands.

At nine that night the half-exposing, half concealing light of a full moon flooded the town, as old Alonzo sat smoking morosely in his cabin. He jumped when he heard a noise in the garden. The still night air was rent by screeches and squacks, as three conspirators, having climbed the fence, dumped several sacks of chickens into the garden. With a howl of rage, Alonzo sprang forth, beating about him with a cane. At that moment, two skinny figures sprang for the cabin door. Alonzo saw them and pursued. He tripped and fell flat on a neatly placed rake, conspirators swarmed over the fence by tens. Suddenly the overweighted board fence collapsed inward, with at least a dozen boys on it. The result was wholesale pandemonium. Alonzo reached the door as Micky came out, preceding his companion, who bore the precious box. Alonzo swung, but Micky dodged the clumsy "haymaker" and reaching under dealt his antagonist a foul and penetrating blow on the solar plexus. This wasn't dangerous, but it was painful, and Alonzo doubled up, grunting. Another tormentor, with all his strength, dealt a blow with a razor strap. This was too much for Alonzo, and he dove into the blackness of the cabin.

Before they could charge, an extremely sooty frying pan sailed out the door, and, bottom out, took one of the malefactors in the countenance, flattening his proboscis and making a small negro of him. Micky replied with a rotten egg, which to judge from the remarks within, met Alonzo somewhere on the head. He was naturally enraged still more, and charged, scattering everybody right and left. Another egg, thrown by Micky, who had crouched close to the door, passed over his head. Perceiving their source Alonzo whirled, and sprang for Micky. However, that wily antagonist reached into the flour barrel, and grabbing half a peck of flour, in the dipper, doused it squarely in Alonzo's face. It went up his nose, into his eyes, mouth, and hair, and thus thoroughly disabled him for the time being. Seizing their booty, in two and threes. Alonzo trying pursuit, gained nothing, and the conspirators marched in triumph to the plantation house, bearing the coveted box.

A Pastoral Idyll

BETTY JANE was the most fascinating individual I have ever known. At a very early age she was left alone in this vast, unpitying world. In this sad state, she found a home on a farm. During the winter, when the weather was so cruelly cold, she stayed in the house playing with her friends.

The spring was spent in the house, too, for the pit-pat of the rain was continuous on the roof. But when the latter part of spring arrived, Betty Jane and her beloved friends scampered out into Nature's parlor, newly papered in green, and thirstily drank of Dame Nature's beauty and freshness. The first hike they took was to a nearby wood where our friend spent the early days of her childhood. Often afterwards she and her friends had the most enjoyable times here. All the time Betty Jane easily made friends with the farm-yard animals, but especially with "Gypsy," the horse. Betty liked him very much.

One day a stranger came for dinner. Afterwards he asked Betty Jane out to the stable with him. Wondering just why he wished this and wondering what was up the stranger's sleeve, Betty Jane followed.

Alas and alack! He clipped and sheared away all of Betty Jane's pretty coat, which was the pride of her heart. The worst of luck will come to everyone, at times —including a lamb.

The Red Haired Bandit

"Watch girl, chair 13, rear car. Hand over to Reed at Pittsburgh. F. W. L."

As he read the message, the small beetle eyes of Tim Carson grew big. "Jimminy, my chance at last. Timothy Carson, you are going to have a chance to be a detective after all these years of longing." With these words the small conductor, dubbed "Shrimp" by his fellowmen, entered the Pullman car.

The occupant of chair thirteen was a clever looking girl of about sixteen. As Tim neared her chair and saw her bright red hair and large, sparkling eyes, he knew she was no ordinary person. He drew back suddenly. Could it be?—no surely not—and yet the telegram from F. L. Trying his uttermost to look unconcerned, he asked pleasantly, "Traveling alone?"

"Yes. Oh! of what interest is it to you?"

Tim felt abashed and would have left the car had the girl not said in an undertone, "You're the man they set to watch and hand me over at Pittsburgh. Well, I'll not give you trouble then, but afterwards—well, we'll see."

Tim beat a hasty retreat to the rear of the car. He took great precaution not to let her see his movements. He drew out a bill-fold and took out a newspaper clipping. He looked steadily at the picture, then at the girl. Yes, there was the same cunning expression, the same curl in the hair, the same pug nose, and yes, even the mole on the right cheek. There was no doubt about it. The girl was the "Red Haired Bandit," the terror of Fifth Avenue!

At this point Tim's thoughts were interrupted by a scream from the woman opposite the girl.

"My ring is gone—my ring," she cried, and as befitted the occasion, fainted. The girl ran to her assistance. Much to the surprise of the passengers, when she revived, the ring was in her lap.

"The girl's a sly one," thought Tim, "but not enough for me. Of course she took the ring, then to avoid trouble, returned it."

The excitement was calmed down a bit when they pulled in at Pittsburgh. As Tim helped her from the train, he had visions of the glory that would be his when he handed this girl to the president of the company.

The girl kept her word and gave Tim little trouble. Not until they stood in the office of J. R. Reed did she flinch. The great man rose from his chair—strode over to Tim, then layed strong arms on the girl, saying to Tim, "Timothy Carson, I can never thank you enough for safely conducting—my daughter."

Reflections of an Urchin

I had an awful thought right now,
A most unusual one.
Just think if I got up some day,
An' couldn't see the sun.

Or s'pose that I was down the brook
A-fishing for some trout,
An' when I looked to see the sun—
Gee whiz! the thing went out.

'Twould be dark as Bluebeard's dungeon
An' we'd not have any light
An' light makes day, an' without that
There couldn't be a night.

I 'spect they'd fix it up some way,
So people here could see.
I 'magine they'd use 'lectric light
But here's what troubles me.

Well, if Old Sol did not show up
There'd be no day you see,
An' without day, we can't have night
So now, what would it be?

THE PERISCOPE STAFF

The Oak Leaf

THIS year the Oak Leaf has lived up to its past record of getting more subscriptions in the school every year. This year the list increased from a hundred twenty-five copies of last year to two hundred and fifty copies. There were also added many exchanges to the previous list. In addition, the Oak Leaf has been uniformly bigger this year and the several departments have been enlarged and bettered. Among the features was a song contest in which a great deal of pep and enthusiasm were manifest and which filled a long felt gap in the need for a school song. The staff has published several special issues which attracted much comment both by their drawings as well as the material. Early in the year, it was arranged that every Alumnus in good standing was to receive a copy of the magazine. This arrangement proved very satisfactory to the Alumni association as well as adding materially to the subscription list.

The support of the student body this year was much greater than in previous times and the school's weekly has shown the improvement. The teachers also have shown splendid cooperation, and without their help many of the most interesting features of the Oak Leaf could not have appeared in the magazine. The staff wishes to take this opportunity to thank the student body, the teachers, and the coaches for the willing cooperation and help that they have rendered the staff.

The Dramatic Club

No matter where one roams, one will always find a few industrious and progressive individuals. Oakmont High School has its share, for last year, some of the same progressive ones suggested a dramatic club to put on plays et cetera, both for entertainment and for personal experience. Owing to a crowded school calendar, the project was then rejected.

However, the idea cropped up again this year, and the Dramatic Club was duly framed and organized. One of the aims of the club is to promote interest in drama itself; another, to produce plays suitable for amateur ability. The regular programs usually consisted of a one-act play interesting, (also illuminating) talks on amateur make-up, and stage-lighting, costuming, et cetera, and reviews of late and well-known plays. Several times theatre parties replaced the regular club-meeting, affording the club members a broader prospective of drama, and its accompaniments.

With the combined efforts of the Dramatic Club and the sponsors, a four-act play, "A Rose o' Plymouth Town," was produced the first week of June, the club's first public appearance, and the grand climax to the year. This was a variation from last year's procedure when a Junior play was given. The proceeds were given to the music department.

Under the supervision of Miss Chapman and Miss Campbell, the club sponsors, the organization has steadily advanced, in knowledge of a Dramatic Club, and its true functions.

The officers for the first year were: President, Esther Gumberg; Vice-President, Jack Harrison; Secretary, Berneice Greer; Treasurer, Margaret Snee; Librarian, Anna Beard.

Amateur Radio Station 8AGQ

THE O. H. S. Radio Club was first organized during the second semester of 1919. Shortly afterward an appropriation was made by the Board of Education to purchase transmitting and receiving equipment. The apparatus was ordered but considerable delay was experienced, for at that time radio apparatus was very scarce and deliveries were slow; but during the term of 1920-21 the material was received and the transmitter and receiver were assembled. An amateur station license was secured and 8AGQ went "on the air." The first outfit was very different from the present one. The transmitter consisted of a ten thousand volt, three-quarter kilowat transformer and a rotary spark gap. Its deafening crash and sputter were awe-inspiring to those not informed along radio lines, and were the envy of the would-be "ham." But while this outfit created quite a disturbance locally, it did not seem to tear such holes in the ether farther out. It gave quite a thrill when the club received a card from Fort Worth, Texas, stating that 8AGQ had been copied there, and the record for two way communication was with Fort Wayne, Ind. The receiver was of the Navy loose coupler type with a double range for both long and short waves.

Then came the transition of broadcasting and interest in learning the code waned. Also the spark simply put the neighboring broadcast listener, with his crystal or one tube regenerative set, out of business, and the club began to receive plenty of cards, but they were from local BCL's who wanted them to keep off the air. One card requested that they keep off the air from 12:01 A.M. until 11:59 P.M.

As the interest in broadcast had replaced that of code reception, the station was closed and material was collected for a 100 watt continuous wave transmitter. This was installed in 1923 and included a 50 watt radiophone. Up to this time all transmission had been on a wave length of between 150 and 200 meters. In 1924 the government licensed the amateur to use several bands of wave lengths below 100 meters and 8AGQ adopted the 40 meter band. The phone was discontinued and two 7½ watt tubes were substituted for the two 50's. The immediate results were astonishing. Reports of receiving 8AGQ's signals came from as far distant points as Rome and two way communication with the Pacific Coast stations became a nightly occurrence. A new interest in code transmission has steadily grown. During 1925-26 four new operators have been licensed and a half dozen more are nearly ready. The War Department at Washington has recognized the work of the station and has asked that it work in conjunction with the Signal Corps of the United States Army in experimental work.

The club is affiliated with the American Radio Relay League and has received an appointment as Official Relay Station. Regular schedules in all directions are being arranged and it is hoped that the club will very soon be able to give free, dependable, world-wide radio service to any who may wish it.

The French Club

Le Cercle Francais, one of the livliest and best supported clubs of the school, has just completed its fourth year. Besides being well supported, it has increased its membership steadily until there are seventy-two in the club.

One of the attractions of the club is its hospitality. All second and third year students may join and a few from the first year classes. One does not have to be a master in the French language to enjoy attending the meetings—in fact, the first year pupils, although they know little French, enjoy the meetings quite as much as the third year people; everyone at some time takes part in the assemblies. Because of this, no one feels out of place, and one learns much during the social evening spent in a French atmosphere.

A play or two, parts of books read in class are given at each meeting, and so much time and effort are spent in preparing these that they are greatly appreciated. At the Christmas meeting, after the business, we were entertained by playing games and later by "le petit Noel." At the April meeting, "les soldats de bois" performed for us, and at the same meeting, two scenes from "Les Trois Mousquetaires" were given. It was a modern version, also boys took the feminine roles. We feel that Dumas would have greatly appreciated it if he had seen our interpretation.

The club is indebted to Miss McNall for her time and the enjoyable meetings for which she has done so much to make the club a success.

The other big social event of the year is to be the annual picnic, to which all are looking forward.

The officers this year have been: La presidente, Helene Streeter; La vice presidente, Eduard Pied; La secretaire, Hazel Harper; La tresoiriere, Jaques Our.

Latin Club

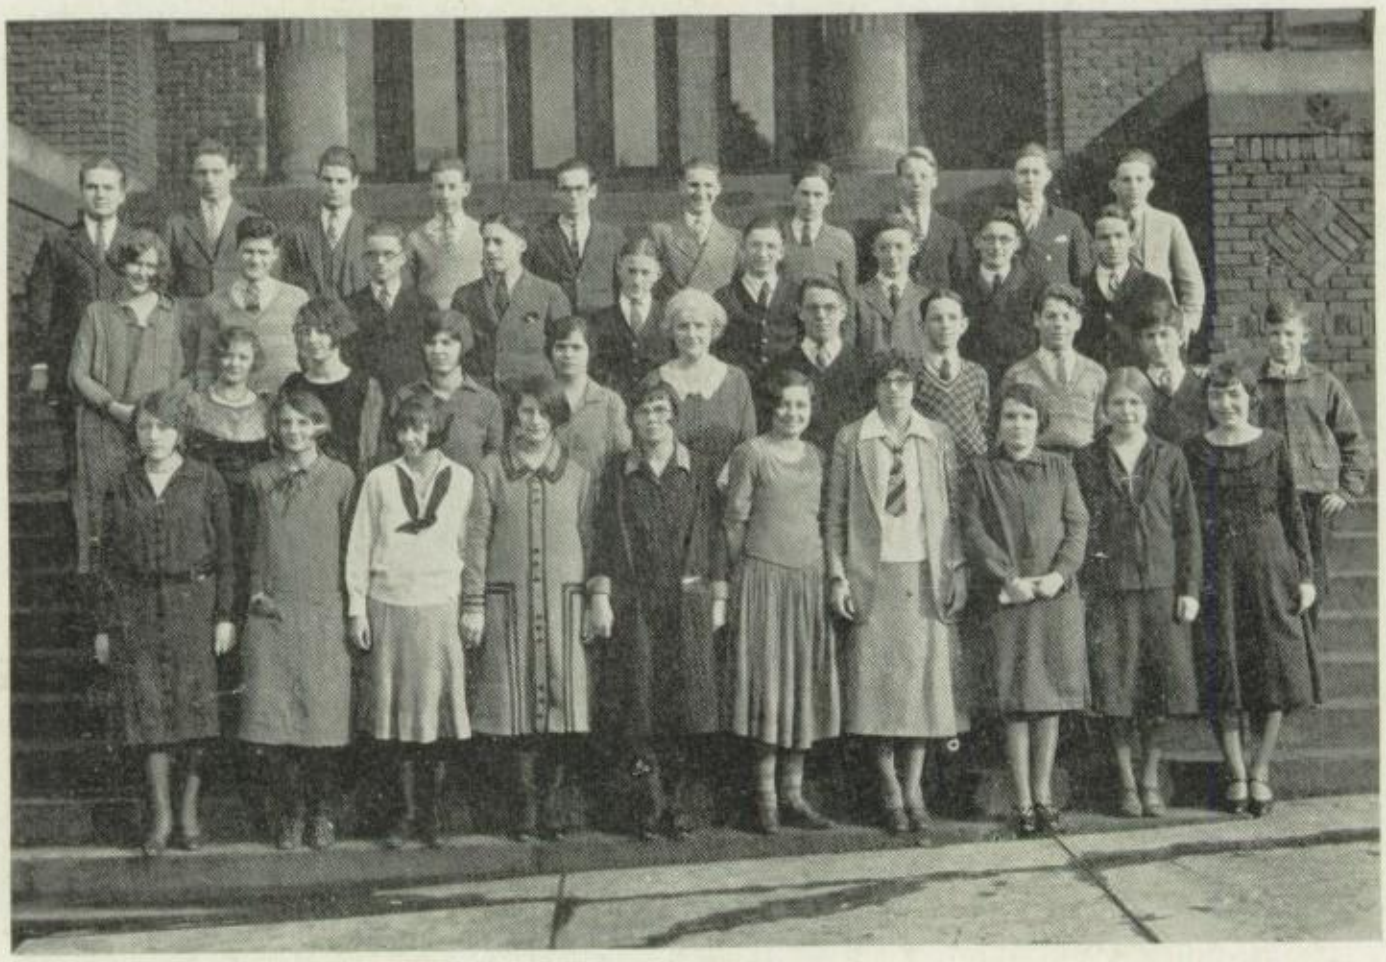
The Latin Club, known as the Roman Senate, is an organization new to Oakmont High School this year. It has proved a success and has grown to such an extent that it has guaranteed its continuing as a club of the school.

In the first semester, twenty-two members of the Virgil classes, with the aid of Miss Hamilton, organized the club. During the second semester, those taking second year Latin, provided they had an average mark were permitted to join, thereby increasing the membership to thirty-two.

The purpose of the club is to promote more interest in the ancient customs, and the various forms of Roman life, both political and social. The programs are carried out in the manner of a Roman Senate. On the several occasions, members have dressed as Roman Senators, thereby making the meetings more realistic. At the April meeting a topic, "The Values of Latin," was given by Miss Mary Dunbar, of the University of Pittsburgh; at the May meeting, a Roman banquet was held.

Undoubtedly the aim of the club has been reached, and so interestingly that it has been a pleasure to attend all assemblies of the Senate.

The officers for the years 1925-1926 were: Consul, Sara Key; Consul, Berneice Greer; Quaestor, Laura Munroe; Aediles, Martha Yourd, Rhoades McBride, Alice Sedgewick; Praetor, Virgina Green, Jack Harrison.



Euclidean Society

THE Euclidean Society has completed its third successful year. The membership has almost tripled since the club was organized and is steadily increasing. Much of the success of Euclidean Society is due to the faithful guidance of Miss Ray, the club sponsor.

One purpose of the Society is to continue the study of Mathematics not taught in the regular session. Thus the importance of the subject is more clearly seen, since it is studied from different angles than are usually touched on in school.

Reports given in Euclidean Society often reveal the practical applications of mathematics in everyday life; what the people who have specialized in it are doing, and what training in mathematics is required to fit one for various fields.

Last but not least the "fun" of mathematics is brought forth. At every meeting the members are profitably amused by contests or games.

Since its organization three years ago, three members of the Society have received awards in the Pitt academic contests: Clare Emrick, '24; Edward Lewis, '26, and Frank Foote, '26. The Society is justly proud of these representatives.

The social features of the year were the entertaining of the members by Miss Ray at a Hallowe'en Party, and a picnic in June.

The officers for the year were as follows: First Semester—President, Franklin Biebel; Vice President, James Bair; Secretary, Edward Foote; Treasurer, Jack Harrison. Second Semester—President, Roy Bossert; Vice President, Edgar Thompson; Secretary, Helen Streeter; Treasurer, Leon Argyros.

Mandolin Club

THE music department of the Oakmont High School is a firmly established organization.

The cooperation of any of the heads of this department may be counted upon, for that is the reputation it has. There are four divisions in this organization, each very active in their individual work; the orchestra, the mandolin club, the girls' glee club, the boys' glee club.

The orchestra carries one-half credit per year. This year it was composed of twenty-eight pupils of the high school. Every morning it plays for chapel, and at all school activities. It is a popular organization and is strongly supported. The orchestra had its annual concert at the Methodist Church, and played for the Chamber of Commerce Lecture Course. They also played for the Senior class play. Several times there have been special numbers in chapel and during music week. The extra numbers are always appreciated, and several times individual members have contributed to the programs.

The orchestra meets Tuesdays and Thursdays, the fifth period, and occasionally extra practices are called. In the orchestra are eight first violins, six second violins, five saxaphones, three trumpets, and two drums, and the accompanist. The great social event of the year for the orchestra, was held in June, a party. It was a delightful party, and all members felt that it successfuly ended the year for them.

The Mandolin Club, for the year 1925-1926, had about sixteen members. Besides mandolins there were several banjos and a violin. This club carries one-fourth credit. The members with the accompanists, Grace Adams, and Preston McMasters, met every Thursday, the eighth period for practice.

The Mandolin Club played at the Methodist Church during the past year, and several times in chapel. The members have improved as the year rolled along, and we feel that by next year the club will be on its feet, after having lost so many members last year, and will be able to give more programs for the entertainment of the school.

The Girls' Glee Club this year has an enrollment of forty, the largest this division has ever had. This, as well as the Boys' Glee Club, carries no credit, for it is considered an honor to belong to either.

The club consists of first sopranos, second sopranos, and altos. Several times they contributed numbers in chapel, and during music week, also. They sang at the Methodist Church, and at the Christmas Carol Service.

In the spring the Girls' Glee Club gave a cantata, entitled, "Pan on a Summer Day," by Paul Bliss.

The club has been well trained, and has made a good reputation by its work.

The Boys' Glee Club, has also done its work well, and has profited by it.

There were thirty-two boys in the glee club this last year; first and second tenors, and first and second bass.

The club sang at the annual Spring Concert, and they also contributed to the chapel periods.

The boys were enthusiastically received every time.

One of the music events of the year is the music memory contest. Much interest is always shown in this, and it is enthusiastically supported. Divisions were made according to: musicians, which was won by William Hazlett; high school students, won by Helen Streeter; grade pupils, won by Margaret Baed.

Due to the great assistance of Miss Moot, everyone feels that it has been a successful one.

Football

With a team which proved to be the best in the history of the school, the coaches started the 1925 campaign. In a schedule of eight games, six resulted in victories, one was played to a scoreless tie, and the other was lost.

The opening encounter was with the North Braddock eleven. The teams were evenly matched, and as a result, most of the playing was confined to mid-field. Neither team was able to score.

The following week our boys had everything their own way and decisively defeated Sharpsburg, 46-0.

Ben Avon put up a great fight but was unable to score against the Red and Black. Oakmont had possession of the ball most of the time and managed to cross the goal twice.

Etna gave the team their first and only defeat the following week.The field was very muddy and Oakmont had no luck at getting a footing. Etna made one touchdown and had also a safety to her credit, making the score 8-0.

In the next game the team had their old "pep" again and defeated Apollo 7-0. Apollo made a tuochdown, but it was disputed and not counted. We'll have to compliment Apollo for sportsmanship.

The Verona eleven were met the following week. The field was covered with snow, but Oakmont was able to score three touchdowns and hold Verona scoreless in spite of the condition of the field.

Arnold was easily defeated in a one-sided game to the tune of 27-0.

The last game was played with Coraopolis. Oakmont was handicapped by the absence of Abraham and Milligan, who were injured early in the game. The team had to fight against odds throughout the game, but even this couldn't keep them down and they emerged victorious by a score of 20-6.

Girls Varsity Basketball

Last year the girls made an enviable record by winning eleven out of thirteen games, but this year they bettered it by taking the decision twelve times and leaving it to their opponents but twice.

The first three games were easily won from Schenley, Alumnae, and Har-Brack Union. Although the opponents gave some opposition, they could not withstand the splendid playing of our girls.

Verona was played next. The game was very close, but again the Red and Black emerged on the long end of the score in taking the victory by a one point margin.

Schenley was defeated again in an uninteresting game, and Parnassus, although they put up a hard fight, were sent home with their first defeat of the season.

In the following game the Harper-Evans combination proved too much for the Ken-Hi guards, and the Oakmont guards were too much for the opposing forwards. As a result, Oakmont piled seventy-three points while New Kensington had to be content with two fouls.

Arnold didn't prove very dangerous and were easily defeated by a 42-5 score. There followed a second game with Verona, who this time met defeat by a much wider margin.

Then came the hard blow. Viola King, who had been injured, was unable to play in the Parnassus game. A shift was made in the lineup, and the girls couldn't get together, and, as a result, received the first defeat of the season. However, New Kensington was defeated again on their own floor by a large score. In the return game with Arnold, it was usually a case of center to side-center, to forward, and another field goal, for Oakmont, of course. There followed another victory for Oakmont at the expense of Har-Brack Union.

Then came the championship game with Parnassus. Early in the game, Viola King found she wasn't in condition to play. The team made the best of it, though, and was ahead at the quarter and tied at the half. In the second half they were all discouraged by certain decisions of the referees. Parnassus started then and piled up a lead too great for the Oakmont lassies to overcome.

They didn't win the championship, but they had a team to be proud of. Every girl on the team sometime during the season, Harper, Evans, King, Squires, Gillinger, Dixon and Akers, will be graduated in June, but we can look forward to a good team next year that will be molded about Anderson, Restelli and Degitz.

Boys' Varsity Basketball

THE boys, although they didn't equal last year's record, made an impressive showing in both the league and in the Allegheny-Kiski Valley Tournament.

Three games were played before the opening of the league season. North Braddock and Swissvale both took the decision over Oakmont, but the Alumni team was toppled in the opening game at home.

The Mars game opened the league season. Mars showed skill in a passing game, but was outscored.

After defeating Verona by an 18-14 score, the boys met the strong Butler quintet. A hard fight was put up but the Butler boys could not be overcome.

Another game was lost to Parnassus. The lineup was changed from time to time. Parnassus took advantage of that fact and as a result they won out.

More pep was shown in the following game. In fact, too much was shown on the part of the teams and the spectators. Oakmont marked up another victory.

A very good game was played with Arnold. Oakmont's defense forced their opponents to try for the basket from mid-floor, which was of no avail.

Mars revenged their previous defeat by winning from Oakmont by a 19-18 score.

Verona was again defeated and in the game that followed with Butler, Oakmont received their worst defeat. Parnassus proved to be our jinx when they defeated our boys the second time.

New Kensington was played again and for the third time in the season Oakmont was defeated by a one point margin.

After three successive defeats, the team opened up and sent Arnold home with one additional defeat.

The league season was over. Return games were played with Swissvale and North Braddock. Oakmont won the first and at the half of the second game they lead 11-5, but when the subs were put in, Braddock made a sudden spurt and won the game.

When the boys had lost hopes of getting any league honors, they said "Wait till the Valley Tournament." We waited, and the team made a splendid showing. They easily defeated Arnold in the first encounter. They were pitted against Parnassus in the next game. After the two defeats received from Parnassus, Oakmont turned the tables and won.

The next afternoon, Vandergrift was played. The game was very close and an extra period had to be played. Oakmont came out on the short end, but in the Falls Creek game Oakmont took a ten point lead in the first and let Falls Creek set the pace the rest of the game.

With such a good team and with more than half the games won, we can well call the past season a success and look forward to another successful season next year.

The Second Team

In a schedule of four games the second team broke even. The first encounter with Swissvale was lost, 19-16, but the return game was easily won, 17-6. Both Springdale games were very close. Oakmont took the first, 11-10, but Springdale succeeded in winning the other by a score of 21-20.

Baseball

ALTHOUGH the baseball campaign of 1925 was not so good as that of previous years, it was by no means to be considered poor. Out of a schedule of six games, all played at home were easily won; all played away were lost by a one point margin. Fernekes and Patrizio performed well in the pitcher's box and Restelli made a fine showing in the catcher's position. They were well supported by the outfielders and the rest of the infielders.

The prospects for the 1926 season are very good. With the exception of Porter and Leffler, the same baseball team will represent the school on the diamond during the season of 1926.

Track

THE track season opened with an interclass meet which was won by the Juniors. A dual meet with Ken Hi followed. Oakmont lost out by the score of 49-46.

After the dual meet with Verona, the season will be closed at the Allegheny-Kiski Valley meet, which will take place at New Kensington.

Tennis

THE girls and boys teams will both be quite active this season. Several matches have been scheduled for each team. At the date of writing, the girls have not as yet played, but the boys team traveled to Edgewood and downed their quartet. We can only hope that the remaining matches will be as successful as the opening one.

Gym Leaders Club

THE Gym Leaders' Club was organized this year for the first time in the history of Oakmont High School. The object of the Club is to train girls who will be leaders among girls, and who can conduct a gym class at any time. The girls have been divided into four groups, each group having a chairman. These divisions present the program for the months, March, April, May and June. They give health talks and health exercises in their efforts to show the need of physical as well as mental education. The combined efforts of the members and that of Miss Webb have produced a club which has been so far a successful one, and all hope that the Gym Leaders' Club of 1927, and the many years to come may be just as successful as the Gym Leaders' Club of 1926, and that they may build higher on the foundation that this year's club has founded.

The chairmen of the committees were: March, Anna Ruth Stanley; April, Geraldine Brinley; May, Anna Anderson; June, Viola King.

NEWS

Mr. Wm. Newberne and his wife, formerly Miss Eva Aber, '20, have returned from China and are now conducting Christian services in Portland, Maine.

Dr. Reid Latimer has been a dentist in Oakmont for more than a year. Two members of the class of '21 are in business in Oakmont: Dr. Thomas Moore as a dentist, and Thomas R. Stone as a druggist. We wish them success.

Robert Montgomery has been teaching in Plum Township.

Alice Campbell has been teaching mathematics in New Kensington High School.

Helen Henke is now librarian at Aspinwall.

Jessie Campbell has been elected president of the Pitt Y.W.C.A. (1926-1927).

Frederick Ellwood and Alfred Lee are co-workers in publishing the "Junior Owl" (1927) at Pitt.

Elizabeth Key, '19, is librarian at the New Kensington Aluminum Works.

Those who attended the "Red Moon," given by Pitt's Cap and Gown Club, found Ambrose Eves, a delightful dancer, in the cast. The music for the play was written by Gus Schnabel, O. H. S. '09.

A baby boy was born to Mrs. James McIntyre. Mrs. McIntyre was Ada King of the class of '18.

Born to Mrs. C. Hastings, a daughter. Mrs. Hastings will be remembered as Marie Bash of the class of 1920.

A son was born to Mrs. James Walters, who was Mary Macrum, '21.

Mrs. George Ehrhardt, formerly Ethel Kuhn, '17, has a son.

Mrs. C. E. Collerd, of Garnerville, N. Y., formerly Hazel Ross of the class of 1912, has a little girl.

Joe Replogle, '13, is teaching Music at Monongahela City.

Stanley Gray, '13, teaches Music at Homestead, Pa.

Frank Householder is the new Oakmont postmaster.

The visitor entered a large, well lighted room. In it were men sleeping, reading newspapers, or conversing in small groups. At one end of the room a poorly dressed gentleman was engaged in talking, apparently to himself, for no one was paying any attention to him.

"What is this?" queried the visitor. "A club?"

"No," answered his guide. "This is a college professor and his class."

I meant to write of cars and dogs,
Of cabbages and kings,
But since the hash for Monday's made,
I'll write of other things.
